Why is it important to interview people you admire?

Everybody has someone they look up to, whether it is a TV Star, superhero, coworker, friend, or family member. Positive role models can influence our actions and also motivate us to reach our greatest potential. Interview someone in your life that inspires you, motivates you, and that you admire. Sometimes it can help to interview someone who is in the career you'd like to pursue, but you can interview someone who is simply of inspiration for you. Come up with at least 3 questions you would like to ask for each category, adding to the given lists.

- You can choose which two categories to interview them with. For example, you can focus solely on professional questions, and some personal questions.
